

Safety Testing and Inspecting for Electrical Equipment (Test & Tag)

Meets the requirements of
AS/NZS 3760:2003

All power tools on building sites must be tested and tagged every 3 months. Save time and money with the skills to do this yourself.

Are your tools safe?

Under the OHW&S Regulations all power tools on building sites MUST be tested every 3 months.

This course introduces the participant to the requirements of Australian Standard 3760 - 2003. Successful completion of this course will enable the participant to test extension leads, portable electrical equipment and residual current devices, and attach tags to indicate that the tested equipment meets, or provide a report if the equipment does not meet the Australian Standard requirements at the time of testing.

Specifically designed for building contractor, this 2 session course could help save you time, money, or serious injury.

BE QUICK! ONLY 12 PLACES AVAILABLE IN EACH COURSE

Enrolment

Check the HIA website, call HIA SA Training Services or request an HIA Training Calendar to find out course dates, then complete an enrolment form and submit it with payment, or enrol online.

Please Note: Payment must accompany enrolment.

Please read the HIA Student Information Sheet prior to completing an enrolment form and read the HIA Student Information Kit prior to attending the course. The Info Sheet & Kit are available at the HIA web site (hia.com.au, click Training, then Enrolment Information), or by request.

About HIA and HIA Training Services

The Housing Industry Association is the Australian residential building sector's leading industry association with some 300 staff supporting the business interests of over 42,000 builders, contractors, manufacturers, suppliers, and business partners in the industry. HIA members include businesses of all sizes; from individuals working as independent contractors, through home based small businesses, to large, publicly listed companies employing thousands of people. 85% of all new home building work is performed by HIA members, so if you want to know how HIA can help you, please contact us.

HIA Training Services is a Registered Training Organisation committed to delivering quality outcomes to its clients around Australia. We take the time to ensure that you will complete our training courses able to demonstrate a thorough understanding of your area of expertise. Employers and licensing authorities can be confident that you have what it takes!

HIA Training Services offers a range of short courses or qualifications that help you with licensing, growing your business or furthering your career. Further information is available from the HIA website (hia.com.au)

Phone: 8340 5900

Fax: 8340 5993

Email: sa_training@hia.com.au